

COMPLIANCE and TRANSPARENCY

Does your Distributor subject itself to the rigors of an ISNetworld Audit?

ISNetworld® (ISN®) serves as a database for online contractor safety management designed to streamline companies' and contractors' compliance pre-qualification processes. It works to help contractors, suppliers and hiring clients to ensure regulatory compliance.

The ISNetworld results of vendor service organizations are used in audits of (Wal-Mart for example), providing the highest level of assurance that verifies contractors' safety, procurement, regulatory, and quality data requirements are being met.

Achieving this compliance is important as more clients use this approved ISN® rating to determine whether they will hire a construction or manufacturing company for a particular job—this goes for both publicly funded and privately-funded projects.

If you want to streamline companies' and contractors' compliance pre-qualification processes, ask for their ISN Rating. Allied Oil and Supply, Inc is ISNetworld Certified.

Is Your Distributor (DPQA) Certified?

Many users presume that lubricant manufacturers and distributors uniform standards and quality measures govern how products are handled. That is not the case. Finding a reliable way to ensure lubricant quality requires a thorough discussion about the critical role that both lubricant manufacturers and distributors play in the lubricant supply chain.

The Shell Corporation Distributor Product Quality Assurance (DPQA) program serves as a strong quality control program. The Distributor Product Quality Assurance program recognizes distributors who adhere to an exhaustive set of more than 120 Shell QA/QC guidelines for both facilities and procedures. DPQA distributors can be verified online.
